

Esther Bubleys World of Children in Photographs (Dover Pictorial Archive)

In this collection, you will see children from Ms. Bubleys viewpoint and perspective. This is a beautiful collection from an award-winning photojournalist. Award-winning photojournalist Esther Bubleys is recognized for both her artistic composition and her superb story telling ability. Bubleys career in documentary photography and photojournalism was launched in 1942 when Roy Stryker hired her to work in his dark room at the Office of War Information (OWI), where his famed Farm Security Administration (FSA) photographic project had recently been transferred. In 1944, Bubleys followed Stryker to Standard Oil (New Jersey)(SONJ) where he was charged with compiling a photographic library. Bubleys was a freelancer for Standard Oil for the rest of the 1940s and 1950s. She simultaneously developed a thriving career separate from Stryker, working for a variety of clients -- including Life, the Ladies Home Journal, the Childrens Bureau, Pepsi-Cola International, Pan American World Airways, and UNICEF -- who sent her on assignments throughout the continental United States and around the world.
